

LATERAL THINKERS

[ARCHITECTURE PHOTOGRAPHY]

ABOUT CHRIS

Chris Stamatou eats, breathes and lives photography. His love for architecture began early on, with detailed drawings of houses and high-rise buildings. His interest in art led him to express his creativity through the highly versatile medium of photography. He believes that beauty can change how we view humanity and endeavors to capture the essence of light through his lens. He feels inspired by architecture and believes that a building is not only functional, but can also be a work of art, lending definition to humanity's constant evolution.

Chris has been a professional photographer operating in Gauteng for the past 15 years, with his skills extending to several photographic fields, specifically architecture, food, events, portraiture and documentary style weddings. He is a former part time lecturer at Market Photo Workshop, where he taught the technical and practical aspects of his craft.

His distinct, creative style is merged with his affinity towards natural light, with each photograph bringing to life the artist's design. After studying Advanced Photography, he discovered the world of documentary photography and exhibited in galleries in South Africa and Europe. His personal work explores concepts of marginalization, time, change and urban habitation.

ABOUT US

We are a Commercial Photography business operating within the Gauteng region. We specialize in various photographic fields, including Architecture & Aerial Drone Photography, Residential Interiors & Exteriors, Commercial & Retail, Corporate, Food, Restaurants and Real Estate Photography. Architecture photography has evolved into the manipulation of different perspectives to bring out the interesting elements of a structure. The art of architecture photography is the combination of the correct techniques and use of lateral thinking, in order to overcome the challenges of lighting and image distortion.
